

NORTH SHORE WATER UPDATE

DID YOU KNOW?

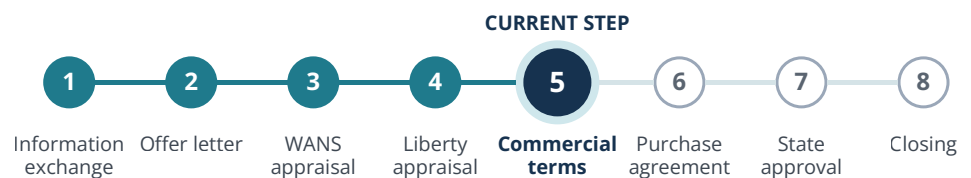

WANS board meetings are open to the public, and meeting agendas and minutes are posted online.

What Is WANS?

The Water Authority of North Shore was created through New York State legislation signed into law in 2021 to evaluate public water supply options for North Shore communities. The six-member WANS Board is appointed by the City of Glen Cove, the Town of Oyster Bay, and the Villages of Old Brookville, Roslyn Harbor and Sea Cliff. WANS does not currently operate any water system.

Residents should continue to contact their existing water provider regarding service and billing.

Where Things Stand

WANS is working through the New York State Public Service Commission's eight-step municipalization process. WANS is at Step 5: negotiation of commercial terms with Liberty Utilities. While those negotiations are ongoing, WANS is limited in the details it can discuss publicly.

Even when specific negotiating details cannot be released, WANS will continue to provide residents with updates on the status of the process, to the extent permitted by law.

What WANS Is Working On

Keeping residents informed

This newsletter is intended to give residents regular information about the public-water process. It will share updates on the Authority's work, explain key steps and identify ways residents can stay involved.

Following Liberty's rate case

Liberty has asked the Public Service Commission to raise water rates in the Sea Cliff district. WANS has filed objections to any rate increase during the negotiation process and awaits a response from the Commission.

Stay Informed

Visit wanorthshorenyny.gov for meeting dates, agendas and the latest updates. To open on your phone, point your camera at the code.

Questions: info@wanorthshorenyny.gov

